Law Enforcement Cash Cow to End

Drugs are the only form of entertainment police get on the job. They don't all use drugs, they abuse the laws surrounding drugs to confiscate the drugs, money, and property of those they arrest.

Its kind of corrupt, if you want the mild report. These days, the cops get to spend any money they confiscate on new equipment. They buy swat gear, police dogs, and high tech spy gadgets designed to catch you in the act.

In fact, there is a lot of corruption where ever there is a lot of money, and this particular money is the kind which is very difficult to track. Much of the money lost in a police raid never makes it's way to court for some reason. It seems like only about half the drugs they take show up as evidence, and nobody is really sure of what they do with all that evidence after a trial.

So while the police are driving new cars, sporting $500 sunglasses and $4000 dogs, we sit by and let them continue on their rampage by encouraging them to bust people for possession of pot.

It's time we legalize domestic marijuana. The freedom we once enjoyed are being completely destroyed in the quest for zero tolerance of pot.

Eradication of the marijuana plant is their top priority. They will seek out and destroy this plant as if it were high level biological or chemical weapons. In fact they spend huge resources, flying helicopters and doing ground searches all summer long, to the tune of millions of dollars of tax money.

These overzealous law officers often abuse the constitution in order to expedite their warrants, in the process destroying the very fabric that keeps this country strong.

With domestic marijuana completely legal, these officers will then have to rely on actual investigations instead of smells. They won't be able to trick their dog into barking at just the right moment. The dog won't be trained for anything but explosives. Hard drugs slip right by anyway.

Male or Female Marijuana?

Marijuana plants come in many varieties, but did you know that they also have a sex? Each plant turns out to be either a producer of pollen, (male), or a producer of seeds (female).

Because of this, the plant is considered to be highly developed and advanced, as plants go. It is the top of the evolutionary ladder, having adapted to more climates and conditions than any other plant we know of. Marijuana has been cultivated by man since the beginning of time, and could well be the reason man began farming instead of hunting in the first place. That puts it someplace between opposing thumb and the wheel, in terms of our evolutionary benefit from this miracle plant. We need to legalize domestic marijuana.

Lighter, Easier and Cleaner

Smoking marijuana isn't the safest habit, as there is always the risk of fire. There are also other risks involved, mostly involving inhaling hot fumes and tiny clumps of hot ashes on a regular basis. Ask anyone who's ever sucked down a red-hot cherry from the tip of a roach, and they will tell you, in a raspy voice, not to smoke it when it gets that small.

However, the risks from smoking marijuana are different from the risks of smoking cigarettes, for a few reasons. First, cigarettes are treated with many chemicals, and are not pure tobacco leaf, wrapped in paper. They are instead the chemically soaked tobacco roots, leaves, stems and seeds, mixed with pesticides and fertilizers. The best tobacco is not used for cigarettes but instead used for chewing and pipe tobacco, or cigars. Cigarettes are made from the left over scraps of tobacco. When tobacco burns, it burns at a very high temperature, vaporizing heavy tars and depositing them in your lungs. Marijuana doesn't burn as hot, and does not give such heavy tars a chance to vaporize. It leaves much of the heavy tar right in the hands of the smoker, in the form of a wet, sticky roach.

Pot coats the lungs with a much lighter oil or tar than tobacco does, and it expels from the lungs much more readily. It helps rid the lungs of toxins.

Water Pipe is Best Method

No matter what you smoke, you are still at higher risk if you are not using a water pipe. A water pipe, or bong, can eliminate over 98% of all particles and tars carried in smoke, by percolating the hot smoke thru ice-cold water before allowing it to enter your lungs.

The health benefits of daily smoking thru a water pipe when compared to hand rolled cigarettes or joints is astounding. Even compared to a cigarette or filtered product, water pipes remove over 80% more tars and other contaminants from the smoke, making it much less likely to cause health problems. The other thing you need to do is assure yourself of a pure material to smoke in the first place.

If you smoke pot, grow your own so you know what is in it. Do the same for tobacco, or at least buy it unrolled in bags where you can inspect it a little before smoking it. Do not buy flavored, or slow burning varieties, as they use harsh chemicals to obtain these results—one of the tobacco industries deadly little secrets they keep hidden.

It's a Modern Rat Race

Seems like everybody wants to be a rat these days. It's more popular than ever, with the new terror alert and all.

Why, what is a rat, you ask? A rat is a person who gets caught doing something, anything, wrong and instead of taking the punishment like a man, he worms out of it by turning in some of his friends instead.

Yeah, nice guy alright. They are way past that nowadays, bringing in professional informants, paying the repeat offenders for information, and much more.

In fact the police count on a large percentage of their arrests turning into rats. If they didn't, there wouldn't be very many busts—as that is where over 80% of all search warrants originate—from a statement.

Don't trust anyone new, and watch the ones you do trust to make sure they weren't busted.

Get a Jury Trial, If you Make Bail

If you do get busted, don't say a word. Hire a good lawyer to represent you and tell the lawyer right off the bat that you are pleading not-guilty to all charges, and will be taking the case before a jury trial.

Many lawyers want nothing to do with a full trial, and will spend all of their efforts attempting to get you to agree with a plea bargain, basically a contract with the state forgiving them for any wrongdoing, and admitting your own wrongdoing in fifty-seven flavors.

The carrot in this arrangement is simply force. When arrested, some people can make bail while others sit in jail awaiting trial. If you can't make bail, waiting for trial can often take longer than a full sentencing would have given.

For instance, they may offer a plea bargain in which they cap the maximum amount of time you will serve at two years. If you agree, less than two years from now you will be getting out of jail, and on your way.

However, if you fight the charges and don't get bail, you could easily sit in jail for four or five years awaiting a full jury trial. What a choice that leaves, admitting a crime you didn't commit, or taking more punishment than the crime allows trying to fight the charges.

They have you between a rock and a hard place without bail.

Pot Brownies, Cookies Make Great Treats

Cooking with marijuana is an age-old tradition. Pot-brownies have been with us since brownies, and pot-cookies are a newer version of the same great thing.

To make either one, mix up a traditional brownie or cookie mix. Experiment with which particular recipe you like or what flavor cookie suits you.

Add in a quarter ounce of finely ground, bone-dry marijuana buds. Be careful to remove any stems or seeds from the batter.

Bake as you normally would, keeping a close eye on it the first couple of times, until you get the hang of it.

When eaten, a couple of brownies or cookies has the same effect as smoked marijuana, but it hits you differently. You get more of a body high than a head high, and it takes longer to hit you. It is overall a very relaxing high, and lasts quite a while. It is by far the very safest way to consume marijuana or hashish - in food.

Every Part of Pot Plant Utilized

There are few things in nature which we can utilize as efficiently for as many things as the domestic marijuana plant.

We use over 90% of the plant when harvested for industrial, medical, and recreational uses. The other ten percent is the part which stores the carbon dioxide recently removed from the air, the roots.

The stalks are used for building materials, plumbing, clothing, and much more. The leaves are smoked, or burned for biomass electrical generation operations. The seed can be used to feed people, or can be refined into oils and compounds which rival anything made from crude oil, such as plastics, fuels and fertilizers.

There is little wasted, in fact the best products for industrial production are still left behind after marijuana is smoked. Legalize Domestic Marijuana now!

Know Your Rights

It pays to know your rights, even if you just stay at home. While rights don't often get violated at home, on occasion they may need defending. The crafty cop will often capitalize on people's lack of knowledge concerning their rights, and thereby take advantage of them. One simple right is the right to say no, when asked if an officer can search you, your car, or your home. Police cannot search at will, and need to have either a very strong case against you, or your permission. Your permission can be gotten by deception, and that's ok with the law. They do it all the time, as a matter of fact, often dressing up as repair men or using a false pretense to get you to allow them inside. Once inside, the cop is going to be looking for any reason to stake his claim to your place. If you don't do anything wrong, you may ask what the big deal is. Well, I'll tell you what it is, the big deal is called freedom. Thousands of our best men have given their lives to defend freedom, in war after war. If you just sit there and let them take it away from you without so much as a protest, then you have the blood of all those soldiers on your hands, my friend.

There is no excuse for not standing up for your rights. Don't like it? LEAVE. Any other country in the world will force you to submit to searches, be prosecuted without due process, etc. but only our country has a Constitution which protects our rights. We are alone in the world of countries, being the only country where the people are actually guaranteed their rights in contractual form, and the contract is actually followed. However, the police and prosecutors do not have any respect for freedom; they smash it at every opportunity they get.
